SATURDAY, MARCH 10, 1855.

Lord John Russell intimated, in his remarks at Parliament recently, that the allies did not intend to depose Russia of any of her territory. His views look toward peace, and indicate the impartial observer can hardly see what attributable object should protect the war on the part of the allies. A writer in Blackwood's Magazine deprecates the idea that the allies are wasting treasure and blood in behalf of the Sultan. It is the right of his Christian subjects that are the master of deep interest. It is, therefore, not the independence of the Turkish government, but the independence of his subjects which he authority as their sovereign. Now this is, perhaps, a praiseworthy object, but the Czar has the same right to insist upon the protection of the Greek Christians in Turkey, and this is his avowed object. He declares openly his design which the best informed in England do not believe him to be his object, whilst his government professes hypocritically another. The writer should be reminded that the reorganisation of Turkey is impossible, and not an object worthy the expenditures of the greatest powers.

The Czar is ambitious; his design is to dismember Turkey, and to extend his dominion. In that he is not singular. His design has been more eager to extend his dominion than the Czar, and had better success. France has lately laid violent hands upon Algeria, and virtually takes in hand the affairs of Italy.

These two nations are but old illustrious, lawlessly prevailing over the world, and appropriating all they could get under any pretext or without any. In so doing, they have only been following at the heels of their respective nations, and so far their design and purpose have been patriotic, that is, prompted by the desire to enhance the interest and glory of their own countries.

Is not the Czar quite as justifiable as they, prompted by similar motives? He wishes to oust from his dominions to the Mediterranean, through the Black Sea. Could anything be more important to the Russian Empire? It is a shanty up from the ocean on all sides. The outlet to the Baltic is set under his control. The Baltic is the only outlet for a free communication with other countries.

We think we must have Cuba on account of its proximity. If we were situated as Russia is, would we not insist upon the command of the Black Sea? What is more natural? In doing so, the Czar consults the best interests of millions of his subjects. Every intelligent man in his dominions will concur with him in his eagerness to possess himself of the provinces of the Black Sea. Russia has been engaged in constant war with the Circassians; but when else is to be expected from the proximity of semi-civilized people and barbarous tribes.

The Czar has been no more aggressive upon the Russians than the Indians. To use a homely proverb, "the pot need'st not the kettle back." Russia is aggressive; so are other nations. If they don't offend them, then all is lost.

Neither party in Europe has any credit above the color in the contest. Turkish independence is abandoned. The newest wawn of note, notwithstanding the protest at the outset. Who shall be greatest is the question; and either's a poor show. They will only waste treasure, and blood, and end when they begin. We believe Lord John Russell sees this, and all England must see it. If not blinded by an insatiable thirst for war without an attainable object, if reason or statesmanship can control the decision then will be peace. The war will not pay in either cash or glory.

The advocates of the Collins line bill are, of course, very indignant at the President's veto; others, of the opposition, opposed to the bill, nevertheless inform us that the veto was an act of tyranny, that it never was designed that the President should exercise his power in this way.

On this point they are very confident and dogmatic, for they have seen it in some what almanac, or electing letter of some what weight. The best way to find out what the power is, is to read what the power is in the constitution itself. If the President approves a bill, he shall sign it; if not, he shall return it with his objections. Then, who gave the power known to him, was, his full extent, and the uses and objects it was to be used for. They gave it full and complete, without reservation. They intended to fix individual responsibility upon the Chief Executive of the United States, for outrages in legislation, and to hold him responsible for Washington knew what it was, and, happily, has left his understanding of it by the veto of a bill on the ground of expediency alone.

There was nothing unconstitutional in the bill, and no encroachment of one department upon another. It was simply inexpedient, and he voted it. There never has been a voting record in this country yet, in our judgment, and there is not likely to be one; and it would perhaps be well if there were a few more of them. We trust some President will put his veto on one of the general appropriation bills, into which every species of profane legislation is to be crowded at the last hour.

The whole did like the constitution without note or comment. They would like to improve upon it, particularly on the subject of the veto power. They would put in several provisions if they could.

George W. Williams, Esq., it will be seen, declines being the candidate of the Temperance party for Governor. He says a good deal, but we can state the case better. Let him adopt the following:

GENTLEMEN.— When I was nominated by the Temperance convention I did not know what the new nothing convention might do. I thought they might probably nominate me for Governor. I belong to that party, and am bound to support their nominees. In case they had nominated me, I should have accepted my nomination and voted for it.

Mr. Robert Halsey of New York has been nominated by the Temperance party. He has given his name to the cause. The Temperance convention, however, has not done so. The party is to be held, and the members of the party are to be elected.

Last year. 11 20 17 M

SATURDAY, MARCH 10, 1855.

One house in this city, last year, sold to the Detroit market, $6,000 worth of tobacco.

For instruments, Auction Sales, &c., see appropriate heads.

GROCERY MARKET.—It will be observed from our Commercial report, that the transactions in grocery yesterday were very heavy.

See the advertisement of seven fine males for sale at the livery stable of Messrs. J. L. Reynolds & C. on South street between Main and Market streets.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—There will be a meeting of this Association to-night, at 7½ o'clock, at their rooms, in the basement of the First Street Baptist Church. A full and punctual attendance is desired.

The friends of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Price, of this city, will pay them a donation visit on Wednesday evening.

Lodging places please notice.

New Albany Tribune, 91st.

The steamer Logan, regular Green River packet, reached our wharf last night with eighteen bags-head of tobacco intended for this market—twenty odd bags-head for Todd's, and the balance for the Picket warehouse.

Elizabeth Harrison, of Vigo county, Indiana, has been married on one Harla while she had a husband living. She was sentenced to three months' imprisonment in the county jail, and to pay a fine of one cent.

It was stated in the Democrat yesterday morning, that a watch, stolen by Foster and Roberts, had been sold to a Jew on the levee. This was an error. We correct it by request, that there was any imputation upon the person who had bought the watch.

PUBLIC SALE OF MARBLE TOMBSTONES.—Those wishing anything in the marble or stone will have an opportunity of purchasing, at the market price, by attending the sale which takes place to-day at the stone yard of Constant S. Seaver, deceased, on Jefferson street, near Fourth.

The Campbell Minstrels will give their last concert, Monday, Third night. We advise EVERYBODY to go, as the opportunity of seeing something such unique performances, and hearing such genial melody, will seldom occur in our city. This company is unsurpassed in the variety and character of its performances.

Five NIGERS AT AUCTION.—Messrs. C. C. Green & Son, No. 80 Third street, sell five negroes at auction this morning, at 10 o'clock.—These are two women, and a boy about 18 years of age. Persons wanting good servants should stand. They will also sell a lot of house and kitchen furniture, counters, shelving, &c., &c.

Fire.—The residence of Henry Dent, Esq., caught on fire yesterday morning. The fire was extinguished without any alarm being given, but it consumed property to the amount of a few hundred dollars.

A false alarm of fire, occasioned by the bursting of a chimney, down town, was sounded last evening.

THE BOARD OF CLAIMS.—Not one of the three persons appointed to the board of claims was ever mentioned by any Washington letter writer as likely to receive the office. The letter writers reported that Messrs. Sharkey, Waldo, and Worth, and E. J. Walker, and others, were favorite candidates. This fact shows how little that industrious class of speculators are to be depended on. The new court of claims will be composed of three State supreme court justices.

Mr. C. C. Speculator sells, this afternoon, at 4 o'clock, several building lots, on Harvey street, between Main street and the Portland Railroad, and Nineteenth and Twelfth cross streets; also, a lot on High street, and five lots in Portland. This property is sold by the trustees of the Chancery Court, andas the sale is for all cash, we feel confident that bargains will be made. We advise speculators and capitalists to attend. See Mr. C. C.'s advertisement, below.

SAFETY RECOVERY OR PROPHET.—The Northern Courier of the 27th ult., relates a singular story of the recovery of stony money. Nearly two years ago, Rev. Wm. Hood, of Monroe county, Miss., was onboard a steamer of nearly $600 in bills. The thief stole the sum, but the host and master had been drawn as, on the 17th inst., his body was found by a negro among some drift wood, and in his vest was discovered $750 of Mr. Hood's bank bills, which had been restored to him.

KANSAS EMIGRATION.—Negotiations are now being made to procure a steamboat to convey a large number of emigrants from this place to as high a point as can be reached on the Kansas river. This will probably be Fort Riley. The emigrants will start between the 15th and 20th of the present month. Among them will be one hundred emigrants from Darke and Preble counties, fifty from Bourbon county, Kentucky, and twenty from Dayton.

DO'S AND DON'TS.—The people at the different churches, lectures, concerts, theatre, &c., have of late been very much annoyed by the continual barking and coughing of persons in the congregation; in fact, it became so annoying at the interesting lecture of Mr. Baird, that he was compelled to stop several times for his audience to cough. He speaks rather low, and it was at times impossible to understand what he said to great the confusion. Now, we think it is unpardonable to take a croupy baby to a public assembly, and just as much so to take a cough there without taking some of Bryan's Pulmonic Waters. They relieve a cough in a few minutes, and cost only twenty-five cents. Raymond & Fatten and other dealers have them to sell.

REMOVAL.—It will be seen from the advertisement of Messrs. Byram, Pitts & Co., in another column, that they have removed their need and agricultural warehouse from Third street to Main, between Third and Fourth, to the spacious residence recently occupied by Mr. Jacob Keller, their old house having proved entirely too small to accommodate their rapidly increasing and extensive business.

The senior partner of this establishment has devoted many years to the science and practice of agriculture in the West, and he has given much sound and practical instruction upon every branch of farming by his writings, which have appeared in the newspapers. He also takes great pains to make himself thoroughly acquainted with all the new and improved implements of agriculture, so important to successful farming at the present day. Implements and machines of every variety and of the most approved patterns may generally be found at this warehouse.

Mr. Pitts, the junior member of the firm, is in charge of the indoor department, and is one of the most enterprising, thorough-going business men in the city. His polite and affable deportment has gained for him hosts of friends—whether for implements or seeds of every kind, we take pleasure in recommending this establishment to the confidence of the farming community.

The steamship Nashville made the run from New York city to Charleston, S. C., in four weeks, the fastest time a steamship ever made.

Fred Borgelding, tavern, Portland.
